David Hynes

Born: September 1971, NSW

Carbine Club Member since: 2008 (Member)

Current employment: Executive Director, Winston Langley

David Hynes was one of Australia's most respected baseball players. A member of the Australian baseball team for over seven years (1989-1996), David's sporting career highlight was an appearance at the 1996 Olympic Games in Atlanta where he finished with the third highest batting average at the Games.

At a domestic level he played for the Sydney Blues and the Brisbane Bandits during the 1990s and was the recipient of the very first sporting scholarship awarded by the Sydney University Sport Union as well as being named Sydney University's Sportsman of the Year.

Post retirement David has continued to contribute significantly to sport in Australia as a Director of Balmain Tigers and Wests Tigers (1999-2004), Australian University Sport (2005-2007) and as President of Baseball Australia (2009-present). He was also an Arbitrator on the 2000 and 2004 Olympic Appeals Tribunal.

In 2009, David's contribution to baseball and Sydney University Sport was recognised with the introduction of the David Hynes Club Batting Champion Award and, in 2020, a perpetual sporting scholarship was awarded in his name. David was also named in the Sydney University Team of the Century.

David is well respected within the property industry and has previously worked in senior roles with Stockland and Meriton Apartments. He is the founder of Winston Langley, a property development and advisory company which undertakes a range of developments in Sydney.

In 2004 David was appointed as a Director of Manchester Unity (2004-2009) and has been a Director of Sydney Markets Limited since 2005.
