

The Carbine Club of NSW

Tim Cox AO

Born: January 1942, VIC

Carbine Club Member since: 1977 (Life Member)

Previous Carbine Club positions: Foundation President

Tim Cox AO, the founding Chairman of the Carbine Club of NSW, has a rich history in the thoroughbred racing industry. A partner of the successful Stockwell Stud from 1974-1988, Tim owned several successful horses including Toy Show and Kiss Me Cait who won the STC Golden Slipper and VRC Oaks, respectively.

In 1975 Tim established Coinda Consultants before joining with Neill Inall to form award winning PR company Cox Inall Communications Pty Ltd. The company dominated its market, working with many of Australia's largest organisations as well as smaller regional companies. The development of The Weather Channel in conjunction with Austar Communications was one of the company's many achievements.

Tim has always been a passionate supporter for the arts, sitting on the board of The Australian Ballet (1984-1998), becoming Chairman in 1994. He was also the Chairman of The Bell Shakespeare Company (1999-2010) and The Australian Major Performing Arts Group and a Director of The Warren Centre, fostering excellence in engineering, from 2002-2004.

He was the President of the Garingal Orienteering Club (1992-1996) and a committee member of Elanora Golf Club. Due to his significant contributions to the arts world, Tim was honoured with the Order of Australia in 2003. He also holds Life Membership of The Australian Ballet and The Bell Shakespeare Company.
